Please explain your answer to question I on ESMA:

5000 character(s) maximum

ESMA's activities on risk analyses (such as ESMA economic report stress simulation for investment funds, annual statistical report EU alternative investment funds, annual report on EMIR penalties and supervisory measures, report on trends, risks and vulnerabilities including risk dashboard) are very valuable. Important decisions for the supervisory authorities can be derived from the results. They provide an important insight for the assessment of financial stability.

The Level 3 measures such as guidelines, Q&As and opinions provide for consistent understanding and implementation of the EU regulatory frameworks, in particular MiFID II, UCITS Directive and AIFMD, and thus, effectively contribute to investor protection.

Question I. EIOPA: How do you assess the impact of each EIOPA's activities on the following aspects?

Question II. ESMA: In your view, do ESMA's mandate cover all necessary tasks and powers to contribute to the stability and to the well-functioning of the financial system?

🛛 No

□ Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

No: If you think that there are elements which should be added or removed from ESMA's mandate, please provide a substantiated answer:

5000 character(s) maximum

We believe that the ESAs lack an important element in their mandate which concerns the competitiveness of the European financial industry.

On a global level, the European financial industry is operating in an extremely competitive environment. EU fund providers for instance are contending with their peers from non-EU jurisdictions for investment opportunities as well as for investors. This challenge remains virtually unrecognised in current EU regulation which largely focuses on consumer protection and systemic risk. Neither the European Commission nor the ESAs as representatives of the executive branch have a mandate to consider the competitiveness of the domestic industry as a factor in performing their duties. This has resulted in massive over-regulation for the European asset management industry which has to dedicate enormous resources to compliance with this regulation.

Other jurisdictions, such as the United States, also take investor protection and systemic resilience into account. However, they have complemented these legitimate political objectives with a third one: Fostering the global competitiveness of the domestic financial industry. In doing so, they give the relevant industries more financial leeway to cut costs and to invest more money in forward looking aspects of business such as artificial intelligence, big data and other technological developments, which in turn strengthens their competitiveness at the global level. We believe it is essential that the EU also enshrines this third objective in its regulatory framework.

We therefore recommend the following measures:

- The "scope of action" of the ESAs, as laid down in the founding Regulations (EU) 1093, 1094 and 1095/2010, shall be amended by adding as the need to strengthen the global competitiveness of the relevant industry as an additional objective. Assets under management, employment numbers and revenue could serve as criteria to determine the competitiveness of the European sector.

- The EU voice in international standard-setting organisations, such as FSB and IOSCO, should be strengthened; key European interests should be pursued more vigorously.

- Allow the ESAs to issue time-limited 'no action letters' to avoid situations of practical impossibility for financial actors to apply new regulation (see also specific section on this topic further below).

On a more specific note we suggest ESMA to be empowered to directly supervise third-country data providers. Especially systemic data providers need be properly supervised.

In addition, we would welcome ESMA to be in charge of the European Single Access Point (ESAP) to be created shortly, especially (and as soon as possible) in relation of ESG data.

Please add any qualitative comments you may wish to explain your reasoning when answering question 1.1.2 on ESMA:

5000 character(s) maximum

Opinions are useful tools for communicating legislative interpretations, but not very helpful for full convergence of supervisory standards as long as they leave it up to the NCAs to incorporate the opinion into their supervisory practice. In particular, ESMA published in October 2013 an opinion with additional reporting requirements (opinion on collection of information for the effective monitoring of systemic risk under Article 24(5), first sub-paragraph, of the AIFMD, ESMA/2013/1340). In this opinion ESMA requires a detailed set of additional information that NCAs could obtain from AIFMs to report on a periodic basis. This leads to the situation that some NCAs require AIFMs to report these additional data while others do not. Regarding cross border activities of AIFMs, this leads to different standards and the need for internal control systems and check lists in which country such additional reports are not required to deliver. As the consequence, different reports provided by the AIFMs complicate the assessment of the data by ESMA. In this case, an opinion was not the right instrument to ensure consistent supervisory practice. Therefore, reporting questions should be clarified by ITS or by guidelines.

Monitoring and assessing environmental, social and governance-related risks should not be qualified as a stand-alone task of ESMA. There is a need for a common understanding that ESG-related risks are not a separate risk type, but rather a specific sub-set of other relevant financial risks. They may have a material impact on all the existing financial risk types (such as market, liquidity, counterparty and other relevant risks) as a factor that contributes to their materiality. Therefore, it is much more important to monitor and assess all relevant financial risks.

Monitoring liquidity risks in financial institutions (or asset managers) as well as monitoring of own funds and eligible liabilities instruments issued by institutions (asset managers) should rather be placed with the national supervisors in considering specific market conditions and business models. However, risk analyses with impact on the whole financial market could lead to better understanding and identifying potential risks.

Initiating and coordinating Union-wide stress tests of financial institutions is not a task undertaken by ESMA because the companies under supervision are not required (like banks or insurance untertakings) to conduct stress tests in this regard.

In the framework of the 2019 ESAs review:

Question 1.1.4 How do you assess the new process for questions and answers (Article 16b)?

5000 character(s) maximum

We welcome that the adoption of questions and answers as an important tool for fostering supervisory convergence is now subject to a formal process to be followed by the ESAs. For market participants, it is particularly relevant that the Q&A process is more transparent and involves publication of incoming questions. It is however regrettable that the transparency obligation under Art. 16b (2) does not cover all questions, but only those submitted to the ESAs. Many Q&As, however, are being developed following discussions among NCAs or questions received by some NCAs, not directly by the ESAs. In these cases, the publication duty does not apply and discussions at the ESA level remain unknown to the interested parties until publication of the final Q&As.

Question 1.1.5 In your view, does the new process for questions and answers allow for an efficient process for answering questions and for promoting supervisory convergence?

 \boxtimes Yes

□ No

□ Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

If yes: Please identify areas for improvement and explain your answer to question 1.1.5 / If no: Please explain your answer to question 1.1.5 5000 character(s) maximum

Yes, we think that the new process allows for an efficient mode for answering questions and promoting supervisory convergence. Nonetheless, it would be very helpful if the transparency obligation under Art. 16b (2) were extended to all questions being currently processed by the ESAs, regardless of whether these questions have been directly submitted to the authority. By this means, affected or interested market participants would be able to feed their views and arguments into the pending discussions which should further widen the argumentative base and thus, strengthen the quality of the final answers.

1.2 No action letters

In the framework of the 2019 ESAs review:

Question 1.2.1 In your view, is the new mechanism of no action letters (Article 9a of the ESMA/EIOPA Regulations and Article 9c EBA Regulation) fit for its intended purpose?

□ Yes

□ No

Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

Please explain your answer to question 1.2.1: 5000 character(s) maximum

Market experience with the new mechanism of no action letters foreseen under the ESA Regulations is so far fairly limited. In the securities sector, we have seen only one example dated 29 April 2020 relating to ESG disclosure requirements for benchmark administrators under the EU Benchmarks Regulation. In this case, ESMA as the competent EU authority stated that the absence of the delegated acts necessary to supplement the new disclosure requirements means there are "legitimate doubts concerning the legal consequences of the Benchmarks Regulation" and that until the delegated acts apply, competent authorities "should not prioritise any supervisory or enforcement action" in relation to the disclosure requirements.

From the perspective of a regulated financial institution, there is little to differentiate a no-action letter issued by an ESA from the traditional forbearance statements that were issued by the ESAs prior to the amendment of the ESAs' founding regulations and which continue to be issued. In particular, because of the non-binding nature of a no-action letter, there is no guarantee that NCAs will act in a harmonised way, NCAs are not relieved of their obligation to enforce EU law and market participants are not relieved of their obligation to comply with directly applicable EU law. The usefulness of no action letters would be substantially increased if the ESAs were vested with binding powers to temporarily suspend the application of specific EU regulatory requirements in certain limited cases (cf. our answer to Q 1.2.3 below).

Question 1.2.2 How does the new mechanism, in your view, compare with "no action letters" in other jurisdictions? 5000 character(s) maximum

A comparison should be drawn especially with "no action letters" issued by the US authorities with regard to administrative provisions relevant for the US securities markets. In fact, the European asset management industry has been directly impacted by the US "no action" mechanism in the context of the Volcker Rule, where the three competent US banking agencies issued several consecutive "no action letters" in order to avoid unintended extraterritorial effects of the US rule on foreign investment funds. The "no action letters" were published as interim measures that allowed the agencies to seek for a proper regulatory solution, consult it with the market and introduce the necessary changes to the administrative provisions under the Volcker Rule. While not disapplying the Volcker Rule per se, the "no action letters" announced that the agencies' staff "would not propose to take action" against the relevant market participants due to the non-application of the Volcker Rule during the period specified in the letter. By taking these actions, the US agencies effectively helped to avoid detriments to the business of EU asset manager with relationships to the US.

"No action letters" issued by US agencies have assumed a considerable degree of importance for the application of the US federal securities law. While they seem to lack a clear statutory foundation, they are firmly established as comprehensive secondary source to guide market participants in their conduct of business. According to our understanding, many courts accept "no action letter" authority as definitive interpretations of the federal securities statutes. In comparison to the EU mechanism, they are much more flexible in their application and the agencies' authority does not depend upon confirmation or other measures to be taken by other bodies. This enables the US authorities to react swiftly to any new situation in which application of certain rules falling under their remit may i.e. go against the legitimate interests of stakeholders, creates unintended consequences or is in direct conflict with other pieces of law.

Question 1.2.3 EBA: Could you provide examples where the use of no action letters would have been useful or could be useful in the future? 5000 character(s) maximum

The usefulness of no action letters would be increased by extending the respective competence of the ESAs. In particular, it would be extremely helpful for the markets if the ESAs were vested with binding powers to temporarily suspend the application of specific EU regulatory requirements in case of significant issues with regard to either conflicting EU rules, undesirable legal consequences or practical difficulties in application in line with Art. 9c (1) of the EBA Regulation.

Question 1.2.3 ESMA: Could you provide examples where the use of no action letters would have been useful or could be useful in the future? 5000 character(s) maximum

The usefulness of no action letters would be increased by extending the respective competence of the ESAs. In particular, it would be extremely helpful for the markets if the ESAs were vested with binding powers to temporarily suspend the application of specific EU regulatory requirements in case of significant issues with regard to either conflicting EU rules, undesirable legal consequences or practical difficulties in application in line with Art. 9a (1) of the ESMA Regulation.

	1 (least effective)	2 (rather not effective)	3 (neutral)	4 (rather effective)	5 (most effective)	Don't know - No opinion - Not applicable
Ad-hoc Peer Review Committees (PRC) composed of ESAs' and NCAs' staff and chaired by the ESA are responsible for preparing peer review reports and follow-ups. The peer review report is now adopted by written procedure on non- objection basis by the BoS.
Transparency provisions: if the PRC main findings differ from those published in the report, dissenting views should be transmitted to the three European Institutions.
PRC findings may result in recommendations to NCAs under Article 16 of the ESAs Regulations that are now distinguished from guidelines, addressed to all NCAs. The use of this type of individual recommendations entails the application of the "comply or explain" mechanism and allows a close follow-up. Mandatory follow-up to peer reviews within two years after the adoption of the peer review report.

The possibility to carry out additional peer reviews in case of urgency or unforeseen events (fast track peer reviews).
The Management Board is consulted in order to maintain consistency with other peer reviews reports and to ensure a level playing field.

Question 1.3.3 EBA: Do you think mandatory recurring peer reviews, covering also enforcement aspects, could be introduced in some sectoral legislation?

 \Box Yes

It no: Please explain your answer to question 1 5000 character(s) maximum

Given that the peer review mechanism is time and resource-intensive and generally takes several months to be completed, we advise against establishing a mechanistic approach that would involve mandatory recurring peer reviews in certain areas of legislation. The available resources at both the ESA and NCA levels can be much more effectively channelled into ad-hoc peer reviews on regulatory aspects that require increased attention e.g. due to their relevance in terms of standard-setting or apparent divergences in national implementation.

Yes: If there is need to add tools or tasks, please specify which one(s) and explain: 5000 character(s) maximum

In principle, Europe is on the right track when emphasizing that regulatory approaches should be designed technology-neutral. With regard to concepts of decentralised finance, however, fundamental questions would have to be answered as to whether the existing distribution of roles in the financial market with its intermediaries and clearly delineated functions and designated central parties is still necessary if technical progress, e.g. through DLT/blockchain, provides an at least comparable level of protection when conducting and settling a financial transaction. Further, in the space of digital assets, the MICA regulation is ground-breaking by directing a regulatory wasteland into orderly channels. The amendments to the MiFID for digital financial instruments are also planned, although technical standards may still be required here, especially when hybrid digital assets cannot be subsumed under the old definitions. Clarifications by the legislator and/or supervisory bodies would be helpful for asset management so that, on the one hand, digital assets can be included in business activities and, at the same time, the necessary legal certainty in dealing with tokenised assets and the relevant supervisory practice is maintained.

- \Box 1 the less significant impact
- \Box 5 the most significant impact
- Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

Please explain your answer to question 1.6.1 for ESMA:

5000 character(s) maximum

During the crisis, we were able to identify many measures taken by ESMA that were conducted in context with, but not always necessarily related to, the crisis. In particular, the number of detailed questionnaires based on the common supervisory action with NCAs (such as the quality of the AIFMD reporting, compliance with liquidity requirements of the UCITS Directive) have resulted in a tremendous workload which had to be provided under difficult conditions (market volatility and working from home) by the companies. This also applies to the questionnaire based on the ESRB recommendation regarding market illiquidity and implications for asset managers. In that context, we do not see merit in establishing a (new) template for NCAs to report relevant and timely data to ESMA during the period of the stressed market conditions. Stressed market conditions are not foreseeable and are therefore not included in supervisory reporting. Data provided during the previous crisis would be not relevant for the next crisis. Standard reporting would bring less value than a reporting that is tailored to the actual event. In an exceptional situation it would be up to NCAs to ask for more information that would be relevant for assessing the situation in their individual markets.

However, the statements made by ESMA during the crisis (such as on corporate disclosure, business continuity planning, risk management of asset managers) as well as the analyses and evaluations in the aftermath of the crisis were very helpful. The outcome of these analyses would still be more valuable if they were also prepared on a country-by-country basis.

Question 1.6.1 EIOPA: Please rate the impact of EIOPA's response in the context of the COVID-19 crisis:

 \Box 1 - the less significant impact

Question 1.6.2 Please rate the effectiveness of the ESAs' follow-up actions on the European Systemic Risk Board (ESRB) recommendations below in the context of the COVID-19 crisis:

	1 (least effective)	2 (rather not effective)	3 (neutral)	4 (rather effective)	5 (most effective)	Don't know - No opinion - Not applicable
Market illiquidity and implications for asset managers and insurers				x
Impact of large scale downgrades of corporate bonds on markets and entities across the financial system			x
System-wide restraints on dividend payments, share buybacks and other pay-outs			x
Liquidity risks arising from margin calls			X

Please explain your answer to question 1.6.2:

5000 character(s) maximum

We refer to our answer to Q 1.6.1. Irrespective of the effort involved in the additional queries, ESMA's analyses resulting from the ESRB recommendations have identified many areas for action to be taken for potential next crises. The cooperation between the ESRB and the supervisor has proven valuable here. However, the outcome of these analyses would be more valuable if they were also prepared on a country-by-country basis.

□ Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

Yes: If you do see a need for greater coordination for ESMA, please explain your answer to question 1.7.2 and indicate what changes you propose: 5000 character(s) maximum

Financial stability supervisors need to operationalise their macro-prudential toolkit. We see the need for further improvements in information and data sharing between all financial stability bodies such as ESMA, ESRB, ECB, national central banks and national competent authorities. This requires a single regulatory reporting mechanism which will reduce operational effort and burden for asset managers as well as supervisory authorities. For a common understanding of financial stability risks and in order to avoid excessive burdens for cross border activities of asset managers, the main challenge is to agree at least on harmonised data reporting and exchange standards between the industry and supervisory bodies.

The AIFMD reporting as an aggregated and consolidated reporting standard is appropriate to fulfil its purpose of monitoring systemic risks of AIFs. Nevertheless, we see overlaps with other reports such as transaction reporting under EMIR, MIFIR and SFTR, central bank reporting for statistical purposes on funds as well as the regulatory fund reports for money market funds and the various national UCITS reports. A general overhaul of fund reporting towards mere raw data delivery can meet the demands of supervisors for more granular data to monitor systemic risks in the long run. However, this requires a fundamental overhaul of all fund reporting. For a short-term solution, this demand can be ensured through a new, yet to be defined data exchange between supervisory authorities that already have granular data (e.g. via central banks or EMIR/MiFIR transaction reporting) and maintaining the aggregated and consolidated data collection approach. We therefore propose only minimal changes in the short run to improve AIFMD reporting. In any case, we oppose to setting up a completely new UCITS reporting different from the AIFMD reporting because this will lead to further fragmentation of investment fund reports. The removal of regulatory obstacles which hinder the efficient functioning of the capital markets should be considered an overarching priority.

Question 1.7.2 EIOPA: Do you see a need for greater coordination between EIOPA and/or with other EU and national authorities as regards developing data requirements, data collection and data sharing?

Question 1.7.3 In the framework of 2019 ESAs' review, please rate the effectiveness, in your view, of the tools below in order to fulfil the new coordination role of the ESAs facilitating the entry into the market of actors or products relying on technological innovation:

Exchange of information and best practices			X

Adopt recommendations			X

Please explain your reasoning when answering question 1.7.3:

5000 character(s) maximum

We would welcome a cross-sector dialogue not only among the ESAs, but also with the respective supervised entities, in particular, related to processes which affect all market participants. We are aware of a practice that one of the ESAs starts to discuss an issue only with the market participants which are under its own supervision and establishes guidelines or recommendations. The other ESAs then follow suit at a later stage, copying the conclusions of one authority, so there is no longer any opportunity to participate or contribute to the basic discussion (e.g. ESAs' guidelines on cloud-outsourcing).

Question 1.7.3.1 In the framework of 2019 ESAs' review, do you think ESMA's new coordination function (Article 31b ESMA Regulation) in relation to orders, transactions and activities that give rise to suspicions of market abuses and have cross-border implications for the integrity of financial markets or financial stability in the EU is an effective tool?

□ Yes

🗆 No

Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

Yes: Please provide examples where ESMA's new coordination function has been or could be useful /

No: Please explain why you do not think ESMA's new coordination function is an effective tool? 5000 character(s) maximum

Competent authorities should be able to cooperate and share information with each other, including an exchange of information across the EU, to achieve a better supervision of market practices.

Question 1.7.4 In the framework of 2019 ESAs' review, do you think the new coordination groups (Article 45b of the ESAs Regulations) are effective tools to coordinate competent authorities regarding specific market developments?

- \boxtimes Yes
- \Box No

□ Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

Yes: Please provide examples where the new coordination groups could be useful / No: If you identify room for improvement in the new coordination groups, please explain: 5000 character(s) maximum

Example: cross-sector reporting and data sharing

The jumble of different data standards and formats in the reporting system represents an enormous burden for the asset management industry and for the competent authorities, both operationally and financially. It also hampers efficient supervision in the analysis of systemic risks in financial markets. There is therefore an urgent need to reduce the current excessive reporting obligations and administrative burdens on fund companies to a reasonable level. The key obstacle to achieving this vision is that the current sector-specific supervisory reporting requirements do not reflect a harmonised long-term vision and need to simplify the transactions-related reporting. The reporting requirements are interconnected because supervised entities such as banks or insurance companies or pension funds often invest in investment funds. Both CRR and Solvency II Directive require banks and insurance undertakings which invest in investment funds to look through into the risks and assets of the investment funds for the purposes of their own capital requirements and internal risk assessments. These Directives require delivery of data and further support services by investment fund management companies about risks assessments and asset data of investment funds in completely different ways and which are also not consistent with the reports which must be provided by the assets managers to their own authorities. Therefore, there is a need for analysis in order to understand and report the risks of investment funds in the same way, irrespective of who is invested in the investment fund.

Question 1.7.5 EBA: In your view, does the coordination function of EBA, ensuring that the competent authorities effectively supervise outsourcing, delegation and risk transfer arrangements in third countries, work in a satisfactory way?

🖾 No

□ Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

Yes: Please explain your answer to question 1.7.5 on ESMA / No: Please indicate how the coordination function of ESMA should be adjusted: 5000 character(s) maximum

In general, we welcome the new coordination function of ESMA. The latest activities were focused on emerging supervisory convergence risks with respect to the treatment of authorisation requests by NCAs in the context of the UK's withdrawal from the EU. ESMA has set up a coordination model that facilitated discussions and allowed supervisors to reach practical common supervisory solutions. These solutions have complemented the guidance provided by ESMA through other convergence tools such as supervisory briefings or Q&As.

However, we would like to suggest that the work of the coordination function would be more transparent to the supervised entities. Open discussions or workshops with all market participants (not limited to supervisors) based on case studies would be helpful to better understand concerns of competent authorities.

Guidelines (e.g. Guidelines on certain aspects of the MiFID II suitability requirements) published by ESMA as well as Q&As (e.g. Q&A on the implementation of investor protection topics under the Market in Financial Instruments Directive and Regulation (MiFID II/ MiFIR)) can help to reach a common understanding and foster a level playing field within the EU as within in the national markets. We welcome this in general. It is in the interest of both investment firms and clients to make financial services more comparable.

On the other hand, ESMA sometimes tries to use guidelines or Q&As in order to tighten legal requirements enshrined in Levels 1 or 2. The "Consultation on Guidelines on certain aspects of the MiFID II appropriateness and execution-only requirements" (ESMA35-36-2159) serves as a topical example (see BVI's response). It is not a duty of ESMA to expand regulatory requirements but to give guidance for understanding for Level 1 and 2.

Question 1.8.3 In the framework of 2019 ESAs' review, the ESAs can now, where sectoral legislation enables them, use their product intervention powers for practices and products that cause consumer harm and after two prolongations of six months, an automatic one-year prolongation of the prohibition is possible (Article 9.5).

In your view, are these powers effective for their intended purpose? $\hfill\square$ Yes

 \boxtimes No

□ Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

Yes: Please specify in what other cases the ESAs could adopt acts of general application / No: Please explain your answer to question 1.8.4: 5000 character(s) maximum

We think that in the context of distribution, ESAs' interventions in the market should be limited. The requirements in Art. 9 (5) are clear and define situations in which an intervention is considered proportional. A prohibition should be the last resort and limited:

- to potentially very significant financial damages to customers,

- to the threatening of the orderly functioning and integrity of financial markets or

- the stability of the whole or part of the financial system in the Union.

This is already set out in Art. 9 (5).

Question 1.8.5.1 EBA: In the framework of 2019 ESAs' review, under the expanded scope of the competences as regards the consumer credit directive and the payment account directive. EBA will also be able to look at consumer issues across a range of activities, for example lending practices. How do you assess this change? 5000 character(s) maximum

We consider this change to be helpful in order to gain a comprehensive overview of the market practices and to bring the attention to potential abuses. In particular the possibility of monitoring innovative financial services (Art. 8 (1) (f)) could be useful in reacting to new trends. This is not only important for investor protection but could also be seen as a chance for investors to take part in the financial market in different ways and making use of financial services.

2.3 Financing and resources

Question 2.3.1 Do you consider the provisions on financing and resources for the general activities of the ESAs appropriate to ensure sufficiently funded and well-staffed ESAs taking into account budgetary constraints at both EU level and the level of Member States?

□ Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

Yes: Please explain your answer to question 2.3.1 /

No: Please indicate what other sources of finance could be considered: 5000 character(s) maximum

In general, we welcome a mixed financing system whereby contributions from financial market participants are considered only one among several elements of the ESAs' financing. The German fund industry is already contributing to ESMA's budget by indirect levies paid from the budget of BaFin and we indeed see the case for such levies being consistently assigned to market participants across the Union.

A fair financing system should be based on a clear and reasonable allocation of the financing burden among the relevant stakeholders. This means a balancing contribution from the Union which shall be subject to a ceiling of 40 percent as discussed in the past would not be commensurate in view of the substantial workload of the ESAs dedicated to regulatory rather than supervisory functions. Specifically, in working on technical advice to delegated acts, RTS or ITS drafts the ESAs actually perform tasks that are generally assigned to the European Commission under Articles 290 and 291 of the TFEU and thus must be financed from the EU budget. The same applies for any actions undertaken within the ESAs' remit of preventing and mitigating financial stability risk in the EU in collaboration with the ESRB. Moreover, by retaining a material financing stake from the EU budget as well as its approval by the European Parliament and the Council, the EU institutions would have the power to prioritise the ESAs' tasks and to exercise influence over future activities by the ESAs. Proportional EU funding would thus help to ensure that national interests do not prevail over the ESAs' commitment to European interests and furthering the Single Market.

Furthermore, a new funding model foreseeing only a balancing contribution from the EU budget would be detrimental to the ESAs' budgetary discipline. Introduction of a fully industry funded system makes adherence to a strict budgetary discipline more difficult. While in general financing stakeholders should be represented in the authority or body in charge of the budgetary control, it proves intrinsically difficult for market participants to control the budget of authorities responsible for their supervision. On the other hand, EU institutions would have no genuine interest in enforcing budgetary discipline upon the ESAs if financial contribution from the EU budget is negligible with basically the entire financing burden being shouldered by market participants. In Germany, BaFin's budget increased significantly after the change to full industry funding was put into place in 2002.

Overall, we are therefore in favour of retaining a significant contribution from the EU budget that should be fixed at a minimum of 40 percent.

Supervision of market data providers should be improved to address concentration risks and dependencies arising from activities of third-party providers whose failure could have a significant impact on the financial market. This involves activities of market data providers such as index providers, credit rating agencies or other market data providers which are not supervised or covered by MiFID II as data reporting service providers and conclude transactions on a large scale with supervised financial market participants. Without secure access to their data and services, operational resilience of financial services in general and in specific cases also financial stability is at risk. Therefore, operational resilience needs to be defined widely, encompassing not only risks in relation to the use of network and information systems, but also market data distributors and all kind of contractual disputes, including all other types of intentional or non-intentional events, with these providers.

The specific challenge here is that large data providers in particular are not willing to adapt the contracts. It is often impossible for market participants to negotiate such obligations in contracts with data providers. This pertains especially to those from third countries. For the past 20 years it has been virtually impossible for asset managers, banks and insurance companies to make adjustments to contracts with large index, rating and cloud service providers such as Bloomberg and Refinitiv as the latter do not allow any provisions that deviate or go beyond their own terms and conditions. The current DORA contract-based approach simply results in less enforcement as contract-based DORA obligations can be enforced only by civil law courts adjudicating on a contract dispute between an EU financial entity and an ICT third-party provider in or outside the EU. As many ICT providers are based in third countries, e.g. the US, the DORA related provisions in the ICT contract may never be enforced at all, as legal action is too expensive vs the value of the contract. For example, a rating data feed from a US rating agency could be priced at USD 20,000 p.a. These kind of CRA contracts would usually also provide for application of US law. The legal costs in the US are simply too high to sue for such a small contract value. Therefore, these providers should be directly obliged to implement certain contract contents. Addressing this only unilaterally with the supervised financial entities would create a certain market pressure in the future, but in individual cases it can still prevent providers from responding to requests for changes from smaller market participants. This can lead to competitive disadvantages, precisely because no other providers are available to switch to.

If you identify room for improvement for ESMA, please specify how this could be addressed: 5000 character(s) maximum

One of the key objectives of the EU framework in the financial sector is to enable supervisors to appreciate and mitigate potential systemic risk building up in financial markets from different sources. For example, we welcome the latest ESMA analysis of investment funds, confirming that the fund industry is resilient and able to absorb economic shocks. We also welcome that ESMA has already started establishing guidance to address risks and to identify the effect of macro-systemic shocks affecting the economy as a whole. However, financial stability supervisors need to operationalise their macro-prudential toolkit. We see the need for further improvements in information and data sharing between all financial stability bodies such as ESMA, ESRB, ECB, national central banks and national competent authorities.

Question 5.3 When several ESAs need to amend joint technical standards (e.g. PRIIPs RTS) and there is a blocking minority at the Board of Supervisors of one of the ESAs, what would you propose as solution to ensure that the amendment process runs smoothly?

5000 character(s) maximum

We believe that the current process requiring adoption at the Board of Supervisors of each ESA provides for appropriate checks and balances.

Question 5.4 In particular, are stakeholders sufficiently consulted and any potential impacts sufficiently assessed?

- ⊠ Yes
- 🗆 No
- □ Other
- □ Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

Yes: Please explain your answer to question 5.4 / No: If you have identified areas for improvement, please explain / Other: Please specify what your mean by 'other' in your answer to question 5.4: 5000 character(s) maximum

Question 5.5 Can you provide examples where guidelines and recommendations issued by the ESAs have particularly contributed to the establishment of consistent, converging, efficient and effective supervisory practices and to ensuring the common, uniform and consistent application of Union law? 5000 character(s) maximum

According to our experience, national supervisory practices are being thoroughly scrutinised against all guidelines, recommendations and Q&As issued by the ESAs. In Germany, implementation of supervisory guidelines sometimes even results in adaptations of the legislative framework and thus, requires actions by national legislators.

Question 5.6 Would you consider it useful if the ESAs could adopt guidelines in areas that do not fall under the scope of legislation listed in Article 1 (2) of the ESAs founding

Regulations and are not necessary to ensure the effective and consistent application of that legislation?

□ Yes

🖾 No

□ Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

Yes: Please specify in which areas it would be useful for the ESAs to adopt such guidelines/ No: Please explain your answer to question 5.6:

5000 character(s) maximum

In the interest of both legal certainty and the democratic legitimation of the ESAs' actions, we consider it extremely important that their functional competences are unambiguously and conclusively defined on the level of the founding regulations.

Question 5.6.1 If you think of the Wirecard case as an example, how could supervision be improved in the field of auditing and financial reporting?

Including Regulation (EC) No 1606/2002 (IAS Regulation) and Directive 2013/34/EU (Accounting) Directive) in Article 1(2) of the ESMA Regulation

⊠ Other

□ No improvements are needed

□ Don't know / no opinion / not relevant

Other: Please explain what your mean by 'other' in your answer to question 5.6.1: 5000 character(s) maximum

From the perspective of the institutional investor, an important component is the improvement of the balance sheet control procedure. Its effectiveness must not depend on the degree of voluntary participation of the controlled company. In this context, the strengthened information and intervention rights of supervisors vis-à-vis capital market companies are a decisive factor.

We also consider measures relating to auditors, in particular greater independence and stricter civil liability, to be sensible and suitable for improving the quality of audits without going beyond the legitimate objective. From an investor perspective, we do not consider any further measures to be necessary in this context.

However, part of the problem at Wirecard was obviously the numerous company formations in Asia and non-transparent or possibly even fictitious transactions between these group companies. In particular, legal obligations would be helpful

- that a Legal Entity Identifier (LEI) must be applied for and used for all companies belonging to the and used for all group companies, as the European Systemic Risk Board recently did for EU companies and those conducting financial transactions within the EU;

- that all material activities and transactions within the group (e.g., company formations, acquisitions and sales, and lending) must be disclosed in financial reports (quarterly reports).

The existing disclosure requirements are obviously inadequate to provide the money laundering transparency register with more meaningful information.

Question 5.7 Do you think that the role of ESMA with regard to Directive 2004/109/EC (Transparency Directive) could be strengthened?

For example, by including a mandate for ESMA to draft RTS in order to further harmonise enforcement of financial (and non-financial) information:

Question 5.8 Do you think that Directive 2004/109/EC (Transparency Directive) should require ESMA to annually report on the supervision and enforcement of financial and non-financial information in the EU on the basis of data provided by the national competent authorities regarding their supervisory and enforcement activities?

6. General questions on the single rulebook

Question 6.1 Which are the areas where you would consider maximum harmonisation desirable or a higher degree of harmonisation than presently (rather than minimum harmonisation)?

Please give your reasons for each:

5000 character(s) maximum

We are convinced that rules for distribution of insurance-based investment products under IDD should follow the same maximum harmonisation approach as deemed appropriate for distribution rules in the securities sector under MiFID II. The last three years of experience with the functioning of the both regimes have shown that even MiFID II does not provide for a full convergence of market practices with regard to e.g. cost disclosures or suitability/appropriateness testing and that further work by ESMA e.g. by conducting common supervisory actions is needed for effective alignment of standards in terms of business conduct.

With a view to the pending retail distribution review, standards for conduct of business as regards distribution of insurance-based investment products should be to the extent possible aligned with the MiFID II regime in order to avoid regulatory arbitrage across sectors and provide for high level of investor protection regardless of the product wrapper in which an investment is being sold. It is particularly important to ensure that the rules on cost disclosure and the advice process in general under both MiFID II and IDD is subject to the same strict commitment to investors' interests and the potential for bias in the advice process is duly minimised.

Question 6.2 Which are the areas where you consider that national rules going beyond the minimum requirements of a Directive (known as "gold-plating") are particularly detrimental to a single market?

Please provide examples of gold plating in the area of this/these other area(s) and explain: 5000 character(s) maximum

The following obstacles still hinder effective engagement by institutional investors: - Lack of a common understanding of "acting in concert": The provisions under the EU Takeover Bid Directive relating to "acting in concert" have been implemented and interpreted differently at the national level. The German implementation, for instance, "gold-plates" the EU rules since it encompasses not only shareholders' cooperation on matters related to the execution of voting rights, but any kind of interaction with a view of influencing the entrepreneurial direction of an investee company. Moreover, the clarification of the concept of "acting in concert" by means of the "White List" published by ESMA (ESMA 31-65-682), which is very helpful in general, does not remedy the German situation, since the implementing national law takes prevalence both in BaFin's supervisory practice and before the courts. Given that incorrect notifications of significant voting rights, but also entitlements to dividends and subscriptions, investors need to be very cautious when coordinating on matters concerning German portfolio companies.

- In some Member States, there is still the requirement to provide for a notarial certification of the shareholder status, sometimes including a certified translation. Others require a certified power of attorney for the exercise of voting rights. Examples include Poland, Hungary, Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania. In such circumstances, cross-border execution of voting rights is effectively not possible.

Question 6.3 Do you consider that the single rulebook needs to be further enhanced to reach the uniform application of Union law or rules implementing Union law and efficient convergent supervisory outcomes?

□ Yes

🗆 No

6.4 Questions regarding the appropriate level of regulation

Question 6.4.1 In your view, are there circumstances in existing EU legislation where level 1 is too granular, or for other reasons, would rather be preferable to have a mandate for level 2, or guidance at level 3?

□ Yes ⊠ No

□ Don't know / no opinion / not relevant
